To whom it may concern,

I object to the plan to create a super depot on Marrowbone lane. These depots create lots of noise pollution at all hours of the day and night, especially when there the roads require gritting in the winter. When the vehicles reverse they emit a very annoying beeping which disturbs my sleep, not to mention loading, unloading and compacting rubble at the current Marrowbone Lane site. The thought of a super depot on Marrowbone Lane fills me with dread. These depots are also surrounded by razor wire which lowers the tone of the surrounding area, giving the impression the area suffers from rampant crime.

Creating a super depot would significantly add to the already heavy congestion on Marrowbone Lane.

Cork street and the Coombe are recently voted among the ugliest parts of Dublin, and creating a super depot will do nothing to improve this.

Yours sincerely,

Declan Flynn
